Ithaca, NY, January 11, 2008 – SC Magazine (the leading industry magazine for IT security professionals) selected WetStone as the 2008 innovator in digital forensic technology in the December 2007 issue.

“Innovation is in WetStone’s heritage as researchers for the Department of Defense (DoD). WetStone visionary, the DoD clients for whom the company has performed cutting edge research and development are not interested in things they can get off the shelf,” stated SC Magazine.

“We are constantly working to stay a couple of years ahead of market demand by advancing science through our research and development activities and constant interaction with our customers. In many cases research drives innovation and our customers help us refine that innovation into useable technologies. We constantly remind ourselves that the biggest challenge in fighting cybercrime is staying one step ahead of the criminals,” stated Kelly Skinner, Director of Marketing, WetStone Technologies, Inc.
